BACK the ATTACK VICTORY LOAN

Great Pilot Killed, Won Award

A fiercely burning British bomber, set on fire by its own load of incendiaries over Milan, was safely brought back over 1,000 miles by its pilot and crew, and all of them have won awards for their gallantry. The pilot, Sergeant J. R. Hazard, and four other sergeants are the first members of the R.A.F. to be awarded the Conspicuous Gallantry Medal (which formerly was a naval award). It is given for "gallantry in air operations against the enemy" and, in the R.A.F., ranks above the Distinguished Flying Medal.

Over the target area the bomber was attacked at close range. The burning incendiary bombs failed to release, and the fuselage burst into a mass of flames. Ammunition exploded in all directions, but, with flames roaring round his turret, one of the gunners shot down the attacker and then went through the fire to help the wounded rear gunner. Sgt. Hazard, the captain of the plane, ordered the crew to bale out, but on hearing that the rear gunner was wounded and helpless, he decided in spite of the grave risk, to attempt a forced landing.

Members of the crew mastered the flames, and Sgt. Hazard determined to save the aircraft if it was at all possible, although it had dropped to only 800 feet above ground. He regained height and crossed the Alps, although one engine was now failing, and reached home safely, with only two minutes' petrol left.

The citation accompanying the awards refers to the "appalling situation" in which the crew found themselves, and goes on: "In circumstances of the greatest danger, this aircraft crew displayed courage, fortitude, and devotion to [illegible] skill, the highest [illegible] and one of his companion have been killed in a flying accident. Sgt. Hazard joined the R.A.F. immediately he was 18, and he had piloted aircraft on at

Seditionist Also Against Jews

U.S. Attorney General Francis Biddle said that Federal Bureau of Investigation agents had arrested Dr. Franz Ernst Paul Fiedler, fifty-nine, decorated German veteran of the first World War, at his Pittsburgh home on charges of violating the wartime sedition statute.

Under the alias of "The Irish-American Club, John McCartney," Mr. Biddle said, Fiedler wrote to John L. Lewis that the "unwarranted murder of white people, that is Christians," must be stopped through "strikes, violence, boycotts (no Christian should patronize Jewish stores, doctors, and so on)."

The complaint against the naturalized chemist charged him with mailing an unsigned postal card containing seditious statements to a Pittsburgh draftee, Harry W. McMurty, the day after publication in Pittsburgh newspapers of a list of inductees.

If convicted, he faces maximum penalties of $10,000 fine, or ten years imprisonment, or both.

Mr. Biddle said that Fiedler had been identified as author of letters sent under aliases to the Spanish embassy, the French Ambassador, former President Herbert Hoover, John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers, and others in which he denounced President Roosevelt, Great Britain, and American entry into the war. He also urged a German-Japanese-Russian coalition against the "Anglo-Saxon gangster nations," Mr. Biddle said.

The postal card to Mr. McMurty, which the inductee turned over to postal authorities, said that "now you are in the Army, not an American soldier, but a British legionary . . . fighting for the British Empire, for Jewish world domination and Russian Bolshevism."

Dora [illegible], Jewish [illegible] Hyman Lubel was killed in action in the last war, says the London Jewish Chronicle.

SAYS HITLER HOPES TO WIN BY MASS MURDER

Rabbi Irving Miller, secretary general of the World Jewish Congress, saw the Archbishop of Canterbury in London and discussed the problem of rescuing the Jews of Europe. The rabbi said the Archbishop was in complete agreement with his view that Adolf Hitler was hoping to win by mass murder and that a practical advance could be made in rescuing Jews if Britain, the United States and other countries would state definitely the number of refugees they would admit.

Rabbi Miller was concerned mostly with 75,000 Jews in Bulgaria and Rumania and said he believed these countries would meet United Nations proposals on this question. He said the Bermuda conference was more concerned with Jews who had already escaped to Switzerland, Spain and other countries, not with the problem of rescuing thousands of others from internment camps.

He was not optimistic regarding dealing with Axis authorities on the question of releasing Jews, but expressed the hope that concerted action by the United Nations might lighten the burdens placed on them.

Tunis Jews Freed From Cruelty

Thirty thousand Jews in Tunis and another 1,300 in Bizerte passed from the cruel treatment of the Nazis, in which they have been black-mailed and half starved, when the Allies entered the two [illegible]

[illegible] and seventy-million francs [illegible] upon them and repeatedly forced the wearing of the yellow star of David to set them aside from others. A few European refugees were included.

Jews were forced to turn over 1,500 homes to Nazi soldiers for quarters and four to five thousand Jews were forced to work on Tunis defenses. The French, like the Jews, were unable to get much food to keep body and soul together in an area stripped of provisions by the Germans. Some French succeeded in getting into Allied territory in November or December, some who so desired were taken to Nazi-occupied France, but many more remained.

In Tunis in normal times there are, besides the Jews, about 80,000 French, 170,000 Arabs and 65,000 Italians. The latter, mostly small merchants and artisans, are likely to provide something of a problem to the Allies. The Italian consuls have been very active in Tunis in the past decade, trying to promote Fascism and intense nationalism.

While French sources say that most Italians who have been in

Norway Church Council Stands Up For Jews

The Provisional Church Council at Oslo, Norway, sent the following letter to "Minister President" Quisling:

"The Minister President's law, announced on the 27th October this year, about the confiscation of Jewish property has provoked tremendous sorrow among our people, and the position was made worse by the decree ordering the arrest of all Jewish men over the age of fifteen. When we now approach the Minister President it is not in order to defend the Jews where they may have sinned. If they have committed a crime, they should be tried, judged and punished according to Norwegian law, like all other citizens. But those who have not committed any crime should enjoy the legal protection our country offers.

"For 91 years the Jews have had the legal right to dwell and earn a living in our country. Now their property is taken away without warning, and then the menfolk are arrested, so that they are prevented from supporting their wives and children, who are left without means. This is in conflict not only with the Christian commandment about neighbourly love, but also with the simplest conceptions of justice. For these Jews are not accused of any contravention of the country's laws, and still less has anything been found against them by legal procedure. Nevertheless they are punished as harshly as only a very few criminals are punished. They are being punished for their race, solely because they are Jews."

DUTCH PATRIOTS BLOW UP OFFICE, DELAY JEWS' DEPORTATION

The blowing up by Dutch patriots of the Amsterdam Population Registry Office is believed to have delayed deportation of Jews from that city by the German authorities.

A special correspondent of the Neue Zuercher Zeitung, discussing the decree ordering internment of all Netherlands Jews except those living in Amsterdam as a preliminary to transportation to Eastern Europe, said "the reason for this is probably that the Amsterdam Registry Office was recently blown up and all records concerning Jews resident in Amsterdam were therefore destroyed."

ANETA has just learned that the location of the destroyed Registry Office was the Kings Hall in the Amsterdam Zoological Garden on Plantage Middellaan.

Leader Dies, Helped Found Hadassah

Miss Hachel Natelson, one of the eight women who in 1912 collaborated with Miss Henrietta Szold in founding Hadassah, national Jewish women's Zionist organization, and for more than thirty years an active leader in Zionist groups, died in Jewish Hospital, Brooklyn, N.Y., after a long illness, at the age of 66.

[illegible] the first correspondent with an uncle who was studying with Miss Szold. From him she first learned of Zionism.

When she was graduated from Adelphi College in 1907 Miss Natelson won the Barlow medal for excellence in scholarship. In the Spring of 1912, while still a teacher, she, together with Miss Szold and seven others, met at Temple Emanu-El in New York to lay the foundation for Hadassah, which has since spread to 500 cities and forty-six States.

Miss Natelson became a member of the national executive committee of the Zionist Organization of America and, in 1923, she was sent as a delegate to the Zionist Congress in Carlsbad. She was also a member of the national board of Hadassah from 1919 to 1931.

From 1912 to 1915 she had been an officer of the New York section of the Hadassah and later confined her activities in this organization to Brooklyn. There she was made secretary of the county division and chairman of her district group in Borough Park.

In 1926 Miss Natelson was director of the United Palestine Appeal in Greater New York and in 1928 headed the Jewish National Fund Council.

Always interested in music she helped found the American Palestine Music Association known as Mailamm, of which she has been national secretary since 1933.

During the First World War she was secretary of the Red Morgan David, which carried on activities similar to the Red Cross but for the soldiers of the Jewish Legion, serving in Palestine with General Allenby, and their families in the States.

Recently Miss Natelson traveled throughout the States and into Alaska observing the activities of Hadassah. One of her desires, a trip to Palestine, never materialized. Much of her time she spent writing articles on Zionism. Her residence was at 195 Underhill Avenue, Brooklyn.

U.S. Zionists Sell $20,000,000 Worth War Bonds

Five hundred representatives of Zionist societies and Jewish communal organizations in Greater New York attended a luncheon at the Hotel Biltmore given in honor of Judge Morris Rothenberg, chairman of the National War Effort Committee of the Zionist Organization of America, which sold $20,000,000 worth of war bonds.

William G. Fitzgibbons, special assistant to Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., speaking on behalf of the Treasury Department, congratulated Judge Rothenberg and the 50,000 Zionists on their successful campaign. He said Judge Rothenberg was an idealist "who translates his dreams into realities."

"This is our war; our sons are fighting it and we must finance it. Hitler, Hirohito and Mussolini have invaded every American home, rationed our very necessities of life and curtailed our liberties," he declared contending that total victory can be achieved only through total destruction of German, Italian and Japanese military might and their philosophy of world domination."

Tribute to Judge Rothenberg was also paid by Dr. Israel Goldstein, who headed the Arrangements Committee for the testimonial; Dr. Stephen S. Wise; Dr. Nahum Goldman, member of the World Zionist Executive; Mrs. David de Sola Pool, president of Hadassah, and Alexander Kahn, manager of the Jewish Forward

Rothenberg of the Joint Distribution Committee.

In his address, Judge Rothenberg called for free immigration in Palestine and for a concerted action on the part of united American Jewry to secure the repeal of the British White Paper restrictions on immigration and land purchases in Palestine, [illegible]

Jews Stand For Their Lives In Warsaw

A pitched battle had been raging for seventeen days by May 8 in Warsaw's ghetto, where Jews have converted their homes into forts and have barricaded shops and stores for defense posts, Polish sources said in London.

The Jews, resisting annihilation by the Nazis, were reported using bedsteads as bunkers and fighting with arms smuggled into the ghetto.

An underground Polish radio station recently sent out an appeal from Warsaw for help. In a broadcast that was terminated abruptly, it reported that Warsaw's remaining Jews had been sentenced to death by the German occupation authorities and that women and children were defending themselves "with their bare arms."

Polish sources in London said that when German extermination squads went into the ghetto they were met by "furious resistance," and that fighting has been in progress since April 20. It was not known how high the casualties were running.

"Seems I Can't Save Anything..."

WE MET on Main Street. Jim had his usual ready smile, even when he got telling me how hard up he was.

"Seems funny," he said, "I'm earning more these days, but I just can't seem to keep it.

"Taxes, Victory bonds and all those other things coming off my pay."

He paused, then went on slowly.

"At least it seems as though I can't save anything. Actually, of course, those war bonds are my savings. I'm glad I've salted away a few of them. And you can count me in on the Fourth Victory Loan too!"

MARRIAGES

Berlin-Gradinger

The marriage of Miss Annette Gradinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gradinger, 68 Arlington Avenue, to William Berlin, son of Mrs. H. Berlin, Esplanade Avenue, and the late H. Berlin, took place on Sunday, April 11, at six o'clock, at the Salle Doree, Mount Royal Hotel, Rev. Dr. Herman Abramowitz officiating, assisted by Cantor N. Mendelsohn. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white satin gown, with a sweetheart neckline embroidered in seed pearls, three-quarter-length sleeves, and flared skirt finishing in a long train. She had a small crown of seed pearls draped with [illegible] veil, and [illegible]. The maid of honor, Miss Florence Gradinger, sister of the bride, wore an Alice blue chiffon floor-length gown, blue chrysanthemum headdress, with shoulder-length veil, and carried a nosegay of sweetpeas and forget-me-nots. The bridesmaids were Misses Norma Gradinger and Ellen Berlin, sister of the bride, and niece of the groom respectively. The junior bridesmaids were Misses Hazel Gradinger and Zelda Jacobs, sister and cousin of the bride, respectively. All were gowned in floor-length dresses of white point d'esprit, with headdresses of pink chrysanthemums tied under their chins with pink tulle, and carried nosegays of sweetpeas and forget-me-nots. The best man was Sgt. Louis Berlin, cousin of the groom. The groomsmen were David Solomon and David Solomon, Jr., cousins of the bride. Spring flowers were used for decorating. Wedding music was by an orchestra which also played dinner music. The bride's mother wore a gown of fuchsia crepe, with shoulder ornament of colored sequins, and a matching hat of flowers and carried Talisman roses. The groom's mother was gowned in midnight blue lace, with matching hat, and carried Talisman roses. The couple left on their honeymoon trip to the Laurentians, the bride travelling in an airforce blue gabardine suit, matching flower hat, a swagger Persian lamb coat, and corsage of orchids. On their return they will live on Queen Mary Road. Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Sophie Gelber, of Toronto; Zelig Berlin, and son Irving of Detroit, Mich.; Miss Mary David, and Mrs. N. "Don't kid yourself—

THIS JOB IS NOT YET DONE"

"Some of you folks at home seem to think this war's in the bag.

That's not thinking—that's just wishing . . .

Now, I'm just a plain private and maybe don't know as much about this war as some. But I was at Dieppe and I know what a tough show that was. And you can't tell me there's not going to be more like it—plenty more.

Bearing those Huns is no ping-pong game, and it's going to need all the guns we've got.

And money, too—because we still need more guns and tanks and ships and planes . . . thousands of them.

Those Axis boys prepared a long time for this war. They're tough, too—and they think they're going to win. My commando pals and I can take it though . . . and let me tell you we're not letting anyone monopolize this war-winning business.

But we need the tools—as Churchill said—to finish the job.

Yes, to finish the job . . . for this job is not yet done.

So, shell out for this new Victory Loan . . . to buy the tools. We'll use them well."

There's still a tough fight ahead . . . fight for all you're worth by lending all you can . . . Buy Victory Bonds.

The Call For Action In Behalf Of Refugees

That was a memorable Intercession Service held last Friday evening at Temple Emanu-El for the victims of Nazi barbarism. The Temple was thronged with both Jewish and Christian worshippers. Among the distinguished clergy representing the various denominations were The Ven. Archdeacon A. P. Gower-Rees, Rev. Dr. M. F. McCutcheon, Rev. Angus Cameron, Rev. Dr. William Orr Mulligan and Professor R. B. Y. Scott. At this great assembly organized religion pleaded the cause of the persecuted. The following is an excerpt from the speech given by this writer:

This service of intercession is part of the programme which the Synagogue Council of America has outlined for the Jewish community, and during the next six weeks we observe days of mourning as well as days of intercession. This service is also supported by the recent action of The Council of Churches. The Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America observed a Day of Compassion for Jews, who are suffering under the Nazi yoke.

Many nations and peoples suffer under the Nazi yoke at present, but there is a special Jewish phase to this tragedy. We Jews not only suffer but we have been singled out for extermination as a people. Two millions of Jews have already been done to death. Six millions in mid-Europe are sentenced to die. Appalling is the tragedy of our martyrdom, but equally appalling is the fact that those who proclaim beliefs in the Four Freedoms have done so little to give freedom to live to our people.

There are immigration laws barring those who might escape to freedom. What a great act of humanity it would be on the part of Canada, for example, to revise those immigration laws in order to meet the present emergency and to permit, say, 100,000 refugees, Jews as well as non-Jews, to come in. What a great humanitarian act that would be! But there seems to be a conspiracy of silence.

From the religious point of view, if we fail to perform [illegible] to die.

So it is our prayer that this service, in a humble way, may influence those who can initiate the work of rescue. I have taken the liberty of inviting to this pulpit my Christian friends, representing various religious denominations, to bear witness to this great historic hour and lend their voice that it may be heard throughout the land of this Dominion, the call of the Church and the call of the Synagogue, in the name of Moses who said "Thou shalt love thy fellow man," and in the name of that Jew of Galilee, Jesus of Nazareth, who became the greatest inspiration for the Church and who taught "Love ye one another." We must do all we can to save those that still can be saved.

Anti-Semitism In The North African Situation

By Jacques Maritain, President For The Executive Committee, Ecole Libre Des Hautes Etudes, In New York

The following appeared as a letter to the New York Times:

The Ecole Libre des Hautes Etudes is an institution of higher learning and of disinterested research which, by its very aims remains outside of political vicissitudes. Yet, precisely because it endeavors to perpetuate the traditions of French culture, of the French spirit and particularly of French law, the Ecole Libre has felt it its duty to give an impartial and objective opinion on a question which is currently dividing public opinion: that of the abrogation of the Crémieux law in Algeria. We believe that the following statements are of a nature to clarify the issue:

1. It is a profoundly regrettable contradiction that a law of the French Republic should have been "abrogated" at the very same moment when Algeria solemnly proclaimed its return to the laws of the republic.

2. This abrogation is unjust in itself and is contrary to all the traditions of French law, because

a. It penalizes retroactively persons who are in no wise guilty of any offense, and thus infringes upon the principle of non-retroaction of laws, which in all civilized countries is the very safeguard of acquired rights.

b. It deprives of their citizenship Jews who are French by birth. For the Crémieux decree was applied at a specific moment — in 1870. At that moment native-born Jews who within a short space of time, fulfilled the necessary formalities, became French citizens by virtue of the Crémieux decree. Since then their children have been French, not through the application of this law but because they were born of French parents just as the children of American citizens are citizens by birth. The 100,000 men who were deprived by Vichy and who are now again deprived of French citizenship did not themselves benefit by the Cremieux decree — their fathers and grandfathers so benefited. They themselves are French because they are sons of Frenchmen.

c. In modern legislative practice the withdrawal of citizenship rights is a very serious penalty meted out to nationals who have committed the crime of espionage or treason. As a result of the abrogation of the Crémieux law a whole category of citizens find themselves thus penalized for the sole reason of being Jewish—a sanction which is without precedent except under racist law.

3. The normal way to remedy the unequal treatment of which Algerian Arabs may be complaining is progressively to lead to French citizenship those of them who will have proved their sincere desire to become a part of the French community.

Faced with the dangerous excitations of German propaganda, it is not by depriving the Jews of their rights that the Moslem population should be protected against this propaganda but by giving to the Arabs of Algeria the assurance that the day the French people is able to express its will their legitimate claims will be firmly defended, provided they will have loyally cooperated toward victory over the enemy.

4. The exceptional circumstances created by the state of war and by the troubled situation in North Africa forbid the turning of any protest, even legitimate into an occasion for agitation in Algeria. If the Jews of Algeria therefore abstain from such agitation this does not mean that they recognize the invalidation of their rights.

As for Frenchmen who are the guests of the free nations, it behooves them to assert the principles of justice involved in a question which concerns part of the national territory, all the while endeavoring to promote the union of all in the struggle against the enemy and evincing every confidence in the United Nations.

5. It should also be stated that if patriotic duty and concern about victory sometimes demand the temporary acceptance of factual situations in which certain rights are sacrificed, nevertheless the abrogation of a law of the republic without the consent of the French people is and remains by nature an act without juridical value. We believe that the French administration in Algeria would fulfill a duty and honor itself by revoking as soon as possible this unjust measure.

Moreover, as soon as France has recovered her freedom, the provisional government of France will have the moral obligation to declare null and void the abrogation of the Cremieux law — assuming that this will not have been done in the meantime. And when the sovereignty of the French people is again able to assert itself, we have no doubt that the Jews of Algeria will have their rights corroborated at the same time, as a fair and equitable status will have to be found for the Moslem population.

6. Finally, if those who today declare themselves in favor of a measure contrary to law, in the name of expediency, give as their reason the unequal treatment of the Arabs — an argument whose validity we deny, because unequal treatment is not remedied by an even greater injustice — still we feel that such an argument deserves to be discussed and refuted.

But if an attempt were made to justify the abrogation of the Crémieux law merely as a measure of appeasing the anti-Semitic feelings developed by German propaganda and by the servility of the Vichy regime toward Nazi Germany, such an argument would deserve only to be branded as unworthy of the cause for which the free peoples are fighting. A precedent of this kind would involve the greatest dangers for the future reconstruction of Europe and cannot be accepted by the human conscience. Anti-semitism is the vehicle of all Nazi poisons, and in no event must any concession be made to it.

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancor
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

Recently the Review received a renewal of a subscription from a Jewish male who proffered the mild suggestion that accounts of weddings and the like, giving all the lavish details, should not be published in these times because so many Gentiles see the Review. This seems to be one of the old subjects which are always new for one reason or another.

The Review does not arrange these weddings, it merely reports them because it believes that what goes on in the daily life of its readers is of interest to them. Nor does it believe that these social occasions are vulgar or objectional for any reason at any time except perhaps during a depression when many people are out of work or living at low standard when contrast would be painful for them.

According to ancient rabbinical interpretation, when the famine which Joseph had foretold in his explanation of the dream of Pharaoh reached beyond Egypt into Canaan, where Jacob and his family dwelt, and Jacob sent his sons to Egypt to buy food, he cautioned them against any display of wealth, told them to enter Egypt by different gates so as not to excite comment, and warned them not to appear too prosperous because of the want and distress which were prevalent among the population. This was wise, understanding, and prudent advice and would apply anywhere in times of poverty and depression, but not any more to the Jews than to their fellow-countrymen.

If it is anti-Semitism the Review subscriber is worried about, that has little or nothing to do with what he may regard as ostentation on the part of Jews. An anti-Semite will sneer at a jolly wedding party of Jews because his face is set in a sneer where they are concerned, anyway. One who is not an anti-Semite will look on it with good humor or indulgence, the same as at a wedding party of Gentiles, remarking, perhaps, that Jews do seem to enjoy themselves with the greater robustiousness which is part of all their celebrations and true to their nature. Things like this, harmless enough in themselves, do not cause anti-Semitism and if they are seized upon by an anti-Semite to justify his already deep prejudice he will still find something or other to complain about in the behavior of Jews. They cannot stop living to meet the nagging requirements of an enemy who can never be satisfied because he does not want to be, and for that reason finds endless reasons for unjustified blame.

If there were ever a time when Jews could enjoy family celebrations with all the trimmings it is now, despite the war and havoc. It is hardly a time of severe economic suffering that is prevalent now, if only to judge by the newspaper advertising for Mother's Day. Luxurious gifts, available to millions who for the first time in their lives were able to buy something special, do not stigmatise the general Canadian [illegible] as a people of no ideals except the pursuit of [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] with eager [illegible] wherever they are needed and [illegible] to serve in the cause we cause, despite the fact that anti-Semitism in this country is a matter of common knowledge and acceptance, admitted or deplored, or slyly encouraged by Gentiles every day in print somewhere in this democracy, shameful disgrace that it is.

The argument that the Review should not publish accounts of wedding celebrations because so many Gentiles see this paper is the poorest one in the world. If it is right for Gentiles to read about these occasions among Gentiles it is all right for them to read about them among Jews. And, if there is ever a flaunting of wealth evident, such vulgarity can be found among Gentiles as well as among Jews. If Montreal, for example, is a materialistic city, much more intent on things than ideas and ideals, it is not because there are Jews here, but because human life is held cheap.

In the way the Jews order their lives they need only to have regard for what is right and what is wrong and establish self-respect on that basis. To live in constant anxiety as to what the Gentiles think is to subvert self-respect, and the Jews have too much sense and appreciation of personal liberty to conform to such an idea.

TUNIS JEWS FREED

Tunis a long time are not enthusiastic Fascists, they have been blackmailed by the consuls into doing their bidding by threats to families in Italy.

Jews in Tunis have dominated trade in wheat, oil and most major exports and imports, except trade in wine, which is in French and Italian hands. The French have been government leaders, bankers and leaders in the commerce and agriculture of Tunisia.

"We Are Condemning To Death Every Jew In Axis Hands Whom We Refuse To Admit"

Toronto Saturday Night says:

May 2 was set aside by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America as a "day of compassion for the Jews." We are so convinced of the good intent of the authors of this idea that we hesitate to comment upon its appalling irony.

Here are some millions of human beings, made in God's image, or at least as near to it, surely, as Hitler and Goebbels, who are being systematically murdered by means which a humane people would not tolerate for use upon animals; and all that we in this favored hemisphere feel that we can do about it is to devote a day, one single day, to feeling sorry for them!

The thing that we in Canada ought to be doing, and the only thing that would give us the right to respect ourselves, is taking every conceivable step, compatible with our chances of ultimate victory in the war, for the rescue of as many as possible of these victims from the hand of the murderer. Everything that we could do and fail to do to that end is simply so much more added to our guilt as accessories to the murder.

There are hundreds of thousands of Jews in Europe who could still be rescued from the Gestapo, if any nation on the face of the earth were willing to guarantee them sanctuary. We have no right to ask any other nation to do that unless we are willing to do it ourselves; and as every Canadian knows, we are not willing. Our immigration laws are a part of the wall which encloses those wretched victims, which they cannot break through nor climb over, and against which they will ultimately be shot or clubbed to death by the disciples of "Mein Kampf."

The argument that Canada would be swamped with Jews if we admitted those who are now in the power of the Axis is one that defeats its own ends. For we are condemning to death every Jew in Axis hands whom we refuse to admit — and many thousands more who would be admitted to other lands if we led the way.

It therefore becomes a question of nothing more than this: Is it better for Canada that, let us say, a hundred thousand Jews should enter the country, or that those same hundred thousand Jews should die because we kept them out? The answer perhaps depends to some extent on whether we believe that God judges the nations of the earth—Canada included.

Conniving With Hitler

There Is Still Time To Help His Victims

The Nation says:

The pessimistic comment about the results of the Bermuda Conference [illegible] be justified. What [illegible] given that it is [illegible] [illegible] problem. That problem of course has to do mainly with the Jews in Axis-occupied Europe. Hitler is now engaged in a campaign of systematically exterminating them, men, women and children, with a demonstration of cold-blooded savagery very nearly unique in the annals of mankind. He has already butchered many hundreds of thousands; unless he is stopped, he will butcher millions more.

One way to help these victims is, of course, to win the war before he has time to carry out his plan; but another and far more hopeful line is to get his victims away from him. The governments of satellite countries, such as Rumania, have indicated they are willing to release some Jews, and even Germany might be induced to do the same. But the bitter truth is that Great Britain and the United States have thus far shown no willingness to let these potential refugees from murder go anywhere and settle down on a permanent and self-supporting basis.

Emergency camps in North Africa or Ethiopia may temporarily take care of a few thousands or tens of thousands; but no government is likely to accept the financial burden involved in relief for a long period when the number of victims runs into hundreds of thousands. Great Britain won't let them go to Palestine, or to England, and earn their own livings; we won't let them come to the United States and take care of themselves, though for a long period we formerly absorbed a million immigrants a year, and our people were prosperous and had a minimum of unemployment while we did so.

If the Anglo-Saxon nations continue on their present course, we shall have connived with Hitler in one of the most terrible episodes of history. For our own sake, as much as for that of the innocent victims of this fearful man-made catastrophe, the British and American governments should reconsider their evident decision not to fight the Hitler mass murder on any adequate scale. There is still time for us to help; the need is great; if we do not do what we can, our children's children will blush for us a hundred years hence.

Jewish Farmers In Canada Raise More Than Enough Produce For Jews Of Country

The number of Jewish farming families in Canada has increased 20 per cent since 1931 although that period included the years of drought, depression and the lowest prices for farming products in Canadian history, according to a statement by the United Jewish Refugee and War Relief Agencies in Montreal which has just completed a study of Jewish refugee settlement in Canada.

The study shows that there has been a slight decrease of Jewish farm settlement in Western Canada where there are long established Jewish farming communities. However, a considerable number of refugees from overseas has been successfully settled on farms in eastern Canada.

The study points out that the produce of the Jewish farmers in Canada is more than sufficient to feed the Jewish population of Canada, which is only 1.4 per cent of the entire population of the Dominion.
